Thirty years ago, breast cancer was considered one disease and treatment options were limited.

We now know that there are many subtypes of advanced breast cancer (HR+, HER2+, triple negative, etc.) and treatment options are available to address specific subtypes and characteristics of the disease.